

REBECCA FLANAGAN, J.D., M.A.

Director, Pre-Law Planning and Programming

Rebecca Flanagan is an UConn graduate (BA, English and Political Science, '99 and MA, Education, '02) as well as an attorney. She received her JD from the University of North Carolina School of Law in 2005, and she is licensed to practice law in New York and Massachusetts. After law school, Rebecca went on to become the Assistant Professor and Assistant Director of the Institute of Student and Graduate Academic Support at Whittier Law School in Costa Mesa, California and the Director of Academic Support Programs at Arizona State University-Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law in Tempe, Arizona. Rebecca has been published in the Washburn Law Journal (Winter 2008) and is co-editor, with Dr. Amy Jarmon, of the Law School Academic Support Blog (a member of the Law School Professors Blog network). She has presented at numerous conferences, including the LSAC New Professors Workshop and LSAC Bar Passage Workshop, The Institute for Law Teaching and Learning Conference, and the inaugural Humanizing Legal Education Symposium. Rebecca is on the executive board for the Association of American Law Schools Section on Academic Support, and is a founding member and member of the executive board of the New England Consortium of Academic Support Professionals.